There are a number of ways to look at the Washington and Lee women’s tennis team’s spring season -- and one of them is actually by the numbers. The Generals return 14 upperclassmen from a squad that posted a 28-1 overall record and a flawless 10-0 mark in the ODAC. Six freshman will also join the crew that placed second at the 2006 NCAA Division III Championships. Individually, there are four All-Americans, seven All-ODAC selections, one ODAC Player of the Year, one Atlantic South Region Rookie of the Year and the Reigning 2006 NCAA DIII Singles Champion returning to the squad.

While most would be impressed by the quantity and quality of those numbers, Head Coach Cinda Rankin is not exactly in an awed state. Rankin, who is entering her 19th year at the helm, is trying to eschew reminders of last year and other past successes by concentrating on this season.

"Every year we shoot to be the best we can be," Rankin said. "Obviously, it's hard to forget the expectations and nobody can completely shove it out of their minds, but we try not to focus on that. We try to focus on each and every match."

Leading the way and helping Rankin maintain the team's focus is a group that this team also holds in large quantities and high esteem -- the seniors.

"It's the first year I've had six seniors," mused Rankin. "I don't think there have ever been so many. If they take their experience into the last match they ever play, then we should do well."

Rankin's seniors -- Emily Applegate, Natalie Day, Amanda Haines, Katie Kingsbury, Kristen McClung and Ginny Wortham -- have been part of squads that have amassed a 74-7 (.914) record over three seasons, have played in the NCAA's three-straight years, and have finished as the DIII National Runner-Up two-consecutive years. Applegate was the 2006 DIII singles champion, and both McClung and Wortham have earned several All-America citations during their careers.

Despite the fact that McClung and Applegate were out during the fall season, Rankin is not worried about them down the stretch.

"Kristen and Emily will be able to come on strong in the spring," said Rankin. "They both have so much experience and talent that I expect nothing less from them."

Not only does this group of seniors hold a lot of experience, Rankin has been most impressed with their attitude and their ability to lead the underclassman.

"They have been able to motivate the underclassmen with reminders, that for them, there is no next year," said Rankin. "I think that has really sunk in -- that this is their last chance."

Fifteen underclassman stand to benefit from the leadership of six seniors, and among that group lies a bevy of talent and ability.

Headlining the underclassmen are sophomore Katie Tabb and juniors Leah Weston, Kelly Will and Rebecca Timmis. Tabb was the Atlantic South Region Rookie of the Year last year and earned All-America honors and won two conference titles (No. 2 singles, No. 1 doubles). Weston won ODAC titles at No. 4 singles and No. 2 doubles and is currently ranked 24th in the Atlantic South Region. Will won the conference title at No. 6 singles a season ago, while Timmis also ranks in the Top 25 (22nd) in the region entering the spring.

"They are just solid, reliable players," said Rankin. "The juniors, especially, are really playing well. They never cause me any trouble. They just come to practice to work hard."

Additionally, sophomores Tori Christmas and Meg Spalitta and freshman Lauren Caire and Katie Bouret stand to compete for the top spots on this year’s team.

"Tori had a pre-stress fracture last year that prevented her from going to nationals, so she has had experience up to getting to nationals," explained Rankin. "Her experience, even though she is just a sophomore, is really going to help this team. Meg has emerged this year to secure a solid position on a very deep team and will no doubt continue to develop with experience."

Christmas emerged as the champion at No. 5 singles at ODAC’s last year, while Caire and Bouret both join the Generals with substantial high school and junior tennis experience.

Rankin thinks that if they continue to improve that their up-side is immeasurable.

"Lauren and Katie are unknown quantities right now," said Rankin. "They are solid players and through their play in the fall and in challenge matches they have earned the respect of their teammates."

Not only do the Generals have a impressive roster this season, but they also have a full schedule, which sometimes includes two matches a day, a road match at No. 1 Emory and a trip to Texas where they will compete in the Fab Five Tournament with Trinity, Pomona-Pitzer and Williams. Entering the spring season, Trinity is ranked fifth in the nation, while Williams stands at seventh and Pomona-Pitzer is slated 10th.

"The Fab Five will be a great experience because it gives us a great taste of what nationals will be like," said Rankin. "During that tournament, we’ll play three big matches -- boom, boom, boom -- and it can be grueling, just like Nationals."

However grueling the Fab Five experience is, Rankin hopes that by March her squad will be ready for the challenge of playing against some elite teams and that it will prepare them for playing with the best come May at NCAA’s.

Ultimately, Rankin feels this team’s performance is going to come down to experience and attitude.

"We have a lot of people gunning for us," said Rankin. "But, that isn’t such a bad spot if you are up for the challenge -- and I think we are. There is a lot of parity and experience on this team from top to bottom. I think that will only help us withstand the challenges we face and help come out on top."

And if Rankin is right, and the Generals do manage to persevere through a tough slate, this season may end with another number tacked on -- No. 1.
Cinda Rankin has built the Washington and Lee women’s tennis program into one of the best in the nation. As head coach for the past 18 years and the co-head coach for the two years prior to that, she has compiled an enviable record of 358-56 and led the Generals to 13-straight NCAA Division III top six finishes, including national runner-up finishes in 1996, 2003, 2005 and 2006.

Rankin was named the ITA National Coach of the Year in both 1996 and 2005 when W&L finished as the national runner-up. Additionally, Rankin has led W&L to 16 Old Dominion Athletic Conference Championships and has been named the ODAC Coach of the Year 10 times.

Rankin, who also serves as W&L’s assistant athletic director, became W&L’s first full-time female athletic staff member in 1985 following the school’s coeducation. She has helped bring women’s athletics at W&L to national prominence and under her leadership W&L has developed a strong women’s athletics program that includes 11 varsity sports.

Rankin came to W&L after a successful coaching career at the high school and collegiate levels. In three years at Humboldt State University in California, Rankin took a losing basketball program and turned it into a winning program. On the high school level, Rankin was twice selected the Virginia High School League’s women’s basketball Coach of the Year after leading her Clifton Forge teams to the state championship game in consecutive years.

Rankin also coached a district championship team in women’s volleyball and has coached tennis and track and field on the high school level in both Virginia and California.

A 1970 graduate of Humboldt State with a degree in physical education and Spanish, Rankin has also earned her M.A. from Humboldt State in physical education.

Washington and Lee boasts one of the finest tennis complexes in the nation with the addition of the Duchossois Tennis Center. The facility is named in honor of Richard Duchossois, Class of 1944, who donated the money in honor of former University president Dr. John D. Wilson who retired in 1995.

The Duchossois Tennis Center is a magnificent four-court indoor complex with a spacious spectator gallery overlooking all four courts, team locker rooms and player’s lounges. The entrance to the facility includes a dramatic gatehouse, an architectural element consistent with two of the other newest buildings on campus, and the lobby features oak flooring throughout.

W&L also has a 14-court outdoor complex located above and below Wilson Field, the University’s main athletic stadium. The complex has eight courts on the upper level behind the stadium and six courts located on the lower level beneath the historic Washington and Lee footbridge.

The facility served as host for the 1998 NCAA Division III Women’s National Championships and has also hosted the NCAA Division III Men’s Championships in 1985, 1988, and 1997, along with numerous other collegiate and local tournaments through the years.
Chuck O'Connell will serve the 2006-07 school year as Interim Director of Athletics at Washington and Lee, becoming just the sixth athletic director in the school’s history.

O'Connell arrived at W&L in 1973 as assistant professor of physical education, assistant lacrosse and assistant football coach. He was named assistant athletic director in 1983, overseeing the department’s finances, facilities and operations. In 1991, he became the director of physical education and in 2002, he was promoted to senior assistant athletic director.

As assistant football coach from 1973-90, including 13 seasons as defensive coordinator, O'Connell helped guide the Generals to ODAC Championships in 1981 and 1985, while mentoring 16 players to First Team All-Conference honors.

As assistant lacrosse coach from 1974-83, O'Connell helped steer the Generals to six NCAA Division I Tournament berths and 36 players earned USILA Division I All-America honors during his 10 seasons.

Prior to his arrival at W&L, O'Connell served as instructor and assistant football and assistant lacrosse coach at Friends School (1965-67) and St. Paul’s School (1967-73), both located in his native Baltimore.

A 1965 graduate of Denison University, O'Connell was inducted into the school’s athletic hall of fame in 1985 following a stellar playing career with the Big Red. A two-time lacrosse All-American, he is also a member of the Ohio Lacrosse Hall of Fame and the Maryland Lacrosse Club Hall of Fame.

Active on the national stage, O'Connell is a member of the Division III Athletics Administration Association, the National Collegiate Directors of Athletics (NACDA) and is the past president of the United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association (USILA) and US Lacrosse Coaches Association.

Ken Ruscio officially began his duties as the University's 26th president in July 2006.

Ruscio earned a B.A. in politics from Washington and Lee in 1976 and earned an M.P.A. and Ph.D. from Syracuse University's Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs in 1978 and 1983, respectively.

Ruscio served as a professor of politics, associate dean of the Williams School of Commerce, Economics, and Politics, and dean of freshmen at W&L from 1987 until 2002, when he became the dean of the Jepson School of Leadership Studies at the University of Richmond.

Ruscio has also taught at Worcester Polytechnic Institute and Kansas University and was a postdoctoral research scholar at UCLA. He recently completed his second term as national president of Omicron Delta Kappa, a national leadership society begun at W&L in 1914 that now has chapters at over 300 campuses. He has led and served on dozens of academic, professional and civic committees.

Ruscio is married to the former Kimberley O'Donnell of New York. They have a son, Matt, age 16.
WASHINGTON and LEE UNIVERSITY — a small, private, liberal arts college, is the ninth oldest institution of higher education in America. Founded in 1749, W&L prides itself on the characteristics that have earned its reputation as a place unique and apart in the national educational scene.

The school’s name comes from two of America’s great leaders who saved W&L in times of need. George Washington saved then Liberty Hall Academy from financial ruin in 1796 when he gave the school its first major endowment gift—$50,000 worth of James River Canal stock. The donation—at the time the largest to any educational institution—continues today as part of the endowment.

Robert E. Lee saved then Washington College from obscurity after the Civil War by serving as its innovative president from 1865 until his death in 1870, and instituting such programs as the School of Law, the nation’s first school of journalism, and the revered Honor System that continues to play a major role in W&L life.

More than 95 percent of W&L’s full-time faculty members hold doctorate or other terminal degrees, and all of them are, first and foremost, teachers. And with an average class size of just 16, W&L students clearly benefit from that expertise.

W&L was ranked 13th in the 2005 U.S. News listing of the nation’s top liberal arts colleges, marking the 17th consecutive year that W&L has been ranked as one of the top 25 liberal arts colleges in the nation.

W&L also features a highly-ranked School of Law that has been an integral part of the school since 1866. Approximately 120 students receive Juris Doctor degrees each year and five Master of Laws.

With a student body that represents nearly all 50 states and attracts citizens from 50 other countries, W&L is truly an international institution set in an idyllic college town. USA Today described it this way: “If you close your eyes and conjure up the ideal campus—red brick buildings with rows of white columns, a placid commons beneath the arching branches of ivy-covered trees, a small town of 19th-century storefronts—you’ve got Washington and Lee.”

Washington and Lee University does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national or ethnic origin, sex, sexual orientation, age, disability or veteran’s status in its educational programs and activities or with regard to employment. Undergraduate student inquiries should be directed to the Dean of Students, Elrod University Commons, (540) 458-8751, law student inquiries to the Associate Dean for Student Services, (540) 458-8022, and employment inquiries to the Director of Human Resources, Howard House, (540) 458-8920, Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Virginia 24450-0303.
